

Gray Fox Family - 31 May 2019, Tinneys' Driveway

The last week of May, an adult Gray Fox is seen 5 times by the driveway and then proceeds down the hill to the South. On Friday as the Tinneys left home for their afternoon walk, they realize why he/she/foxes were visiting, as two Gray Fox Kits are noted in the rocks.

The Kits are inquisitive, adventurous, and seek knowledge about their surroundings and the rocks.

Since we are unsupervised, how about a game of chase in these rocks or wrestling and tail biting?

Since we are not allowed to climb trees, I think that I'm getting tired, how about let's go to our hiding den in the rocks and take a nap!
